Follow the road "RD 532" very carefully for about 200 meters and take a path on the left. You are in a forest of oaks that you do not leave until the plateau. This typical Mediterranean forest here is particularly large for the region. You will easily recognize the holm oak with its evergreen leaves that look like holly. At the next junction go straight. Further on you cross a nice little stream. Continue the ascent. Join a road you turn right to reach the ridge.

Take the small path down under the road. It becomes sinuous. Sometimes we have beautiful views of the meander of the Doux river. Further down above the house "VALLEE", you will enter in a chestnut-wood. The path then enters in a bush of green oak, maples and boxwoods. Sometimes a point of view you can admire the Doux gorges and some old terraces still maintained. Note also facing the penstock of the hydroelectric plant of Mordane. Join the house "GOUNY", the path that climbs along a meadow. Join the road, go left and turn right just after the house "MONERONE". Go down the main path to reach a small road. Follow the left to find your starting point. The road above the Doux provides beautiful views on the dam and the line of the Vivarais Railway.
